You ever seen a good man do what a good man want
Well he know that ain't fair
I've seen a bad man do what a bad man want
A bad man really don't care
Seen a good man win, seen a good man lose
'cause he didn't want to fight.
I've seen a bad man win almost all the time
'cause a bad man don't care if he right.
And hey hey...

Remember when we used to dance
Holding hands in a circle, well I do
Remember when we used to laugh
Clapping hands in a circle, well I do

Seen a good man fall
A bad man walk by and he don't give a fuck
Seen a bad man fall, a good man walk by
Put his hand out to pick him up
The good man like to think that once you've learned your lesson
You can gets to forgetten what is got you stressing Beyond the hope, there ain't a good chance for that
With the devil flipping burgers in the back
And a good man, like to say "hey love look at those people"
But it's the bad man who want a date today
Well he really live with that evil, one more time
And hey hey...

Remember when we used to dance
Holding hands in a circle, well I do
Remember when we used to laugh
Clapping hands in a circle, well I do

Then the rain, pulls out me gladly in a shame
I ain't got non daddy, and the pain
I felt some sadly, so I
Sit in the bleachers getting drunk in the moonlight.
Rain, pulls out me gladly in a shame
I ain't got non daddy, and the pain

I felt some sadly, so I
Sit in the bleachers getting drunk in the moonlight.

Then the good man toss and turn at night
With nightmares about raising a hoodlum
But the bad man sleep like a baby at night
But when he dream, about raising a good son
Then the good man, he still hold hands
And sit and give thanks
For the bad man who don't trust nobody
So he always walk with a shame.
And it goes, hey hey...

Remember when we used to dance
Holding hands in a circle, well I do
Remember when we used to laugh
Clapping hands in a circle, well I do

Remember when we used to dance
Holding hands in a circle, well I do
Remember when we used to laugh
Clapping hands in a circle, well I do

It wasn't that long ago, really wasn't though
Seems like it though.

(That's hot right?)
