"Walk On The Water"

She walked to the water and came back looking good and feeling fine

And you could tell by her eyes you was not wasting time

She walked to the water and every light went on inside the town

You know the love in her eyes was flashing on the rocks all around

Down to the water she walked and all the people moved aside

You know the light in her hair so bright they almost cried

"Stay by the water," she said, and she was right, I know she was

You know she told me true 'bout all the things I've got

Gone down to see her, bring yourself and all that you might own

She can give you the clues to all the seeds you've sown

Down to the water, she came back feeling fine and looking good

And you could tell by her eyes that she always knew she would
