See you waiting through my window pane
Anticipating all my fears again
Been so long since I unlocked the door
Painful memories I cannot ignore
Where do I begin? Can I let you in?

Open up the door, step inside the hall
And welcome to the place that I call home
I've been scared to show, let anybody know
What's been going on inside for oh, so long

Standing in my living room you see
Deep into the very heart of me
Sacrifice my fear to have you close
This is where I know, I need you most Where do I begin? It's time to let you in

And now you're here and I know it's all I needed
And I'd like you to stay, it's a brand new day
