on the sunset, horses silhouette all is calm tonight new horizon, keep your eyes on those stars lighting a way

take me somewhere out there through the fields, in the night

all the dark horses ride
no more reining in
now my aim is in sight
to the wild and the light

out of harm's way, where the traps all lay tying you down, selling you out beating you down - they're all over town know your true self, or your truth might bend they will turf you out in the end don't heed a word they say keep heading away

faraway, slow in motion

long-lost summer days are shining around again, sky ablaze, ride away...
