Well, you start. Man, you can't stop it now. It is like a river under water, floating down a raft, inside your car. Well, you left. Man, you can't come back now. It's like you are climbing down a ladder upside down and backwards in the dark. Well, you have your cardboard and your markers set. We can all see it isn't raining so we leave the house and don't get wet. And it's a long time, humming a story in your mind until your parents tell you to stop. It's been a long time hanging around until you leave.
