Whenever I think that I'm losing control
Think that my life force will split from my soul
Then I feel my future lies under my tongue

I wait for a bell which will never be rung
I know that I need to step over the line
And I feel my roots growing strong over time

That's when I start to hear
The freeway calling for me
Others hear it too
We just have to trust

That we choose the right traveler
From out of the crowd
Don't choose the friendly one who's talking too loud
Don't choose the one filled with plans but no dreams
Don't choose the one who is not what he seems
And if you stand still
You are traveling too
Making it easy for someone to choose you

We're all on the run
And we all share one voice
And integrate while we all make the right choice

We chose the right moment
And everything clicks
You see the way forward and you move just a bit

Then you are traveling again for the best
Making your next choice
As good as the rest

If you stand still
You are traveling too
Making it easy for someone to choose you
Maybe you feel
Those other eyes upon you
Making it easy for someone to choose you
Making it easy

Traveling, traveling
Traveling, traveling
You are traveling, traveling
If you stand still
You are traveling (too), traveling
You are traveling, traveling
If you stand still
You are traveling (too), traveling
You are traveling, traveling
If you stand still
