(Janet/Terri)

Tossing and turning as your sheets wrap around you And your breathing is peaceful but you sleep is unsettling

Slowly and steadily your memories start spinning
'round

And you try hard to follow you will want to remember The breeze moves the curtains as it passes across your arms

And you stir as it passes but you can't really feel it now Something is different the colors are shimmering And your breathing gets quicker and your arms start to stiffen

You know that you're sleeping and you're sure that you're sleeping

Under certain conditions this could be terrifying Movement and quality are somehow in harmony
And you might like to linger but you're feeling kinetic
