"Stone Rain"

"Come over to me" she said
"I swear you won't be misled and leave this trail of tears behind thee!"

The nights smelled of roses then it felt like love again with my bride and me immersing into the sea

No, I never saw no danger sign on the winding road to mistrust
The little toy soldier went down the Rhine Her wedding wreath crumbled to dust

She stretched out her golden hand as we walked on amber sand on the shores of time that know no trespassing

Now the valley lies quiet down there the rocks lost their golden glare This sky has gone dark with clouds overcasting

And forever found its end somehow but my boat will be leaving at last St. Piran's flag shows a broken vow Come friends, tie my bones to the mast

I was hiding from a stone rain
This confusion tracked me down Now meet me at the Lost & Found

I was hiding from a stone rain
Blind emotions nailed me to the ground
She closed the door without a sound
Our love became so ironbound
