Up on the balcony
I watched you walk away but I couldn't see that this parting kiss was forever, oh come back to me Yet another summer without you, soon fall will be there but comes winter I guess I'll be over in Cornwall somewhere

I try walking in our footsteps
These days passing in a time lapse I went trough anger, hate and frustration searching for some kind of revokation We couldn't fail? How did it happen?
Just for a dare? Everything's shattered...
Darkness embrace me, I'm misplaced here
This is the wrong score, stranded on a strange shore...

The way we were Yes, our hearts were beating together til something occured
Now you're up there somewhere in Scotland and I'm left in midair guess I'm waiting for your return eternally but comes the end of December, let it rain down on me...

What have we found? Just a rebound was it worth the price we paid?
What have we gained after these strains?
Remember Penzance Promenade...
What's the truth? The importance of who's right or wrong?
I don't care, cause the nights without you are much too long

Each day my heart is gettin' colder
The burden's heavy on my shoulder over and over I see the same scene trapped in a nightmare, not just a bad dream Couldn't run coz I was petrified Tried to swallow my foolish pride Or cities are lost forever so it seems missing you so much it makes me want to scream

Last night I had a dream Me flying high above the sea in the sky with my arms wide open dazzling clouds passing by And the mermaids' song guiding me on my way to the coastline with its cliffs of chalk and clay

I'm trying hard to keep my eyes shut
The things I see they are not clear-cut No matter how I try to get you out of my mind somewhere you're still there and I wish that I was blind This time there'll be no substitution just like with former dissolutions Occupying my heart hence there'll be no new start A devotion as deep as the ocean

A saturday back in September the golden sunlight in your eyes This day I always will remember You were the fairest of all brides

The sun has gone, we're on our own Our paradise, a fragile dream A void is calling, and I'm falling into time's adamant stream Called your name into the night but you're gone Still a flame might arise from the embers at dawn

I want to be again on our way back home
I want to be again on our way back home
I want to be again on our way back home
I want to be again on our way back home

Come to me, come to me come to me across the sea
come to me, come to me
together in eternity...
