You twist your words to suit the context
You play your hand behind your back
Then you run, you run away
(hide behind the shadow, save your face)
Turned bad habit into reflex
You turned fiction into fact
And you run, you run away

You want to
Pull the wool over our eyes
I want to Help you realize
You have to
Break the chain and break away
You know you
Can't be better off this way

You turn fact back into fiction
But I have read between the lies
But you turn away
You save face with contradiction
And this time it's no surprise
That you turn away

Cry wolf! Cry wolf! We'll see who's running to your side!

All your actions have their consequences and
There are a few things that you might have to learn
I know from my own experiences that Trust is something that you have to earn, you have to earn

-This song is about a person who is caught up in a cycle of lies. Lying is no way to make friends-
