"Strange Love"

Once I had a strange love, a mad sort of insane love, a love so fast and fierce I thought i'd die yes once I had a strange love, a pure but very pained love, a love that burned like fire through a field

Oh once I had a strange love, a childlike but derranged love, a love that if were bottled it would kill.

See once I had a strange love, a secret and untamed love, a love that took no prisoners at all

And once I had a strange love a psychic unexplained love, a love that challenged scientific facts

And then there was that strange love, that very badly trained love, a love that needed discipline and facts

a public acclaimed love, the kind of love that's seen in magazines.

And once I had a strange love, a beautiful but vained love, a love I think it's better left in dreams

And once I had a strange love, a morally inflamed love, we'd go on holy battles in the nights

that vulgar and profane love, the kind of love that we don't talk about

Yes, once I had a strange love,

a lying infidel love, who wove in stories like Sherazade

And once I had a strange love, a flaky white kinky love, we ran so fast we almost spilled our guts..

You see i've had some strange love, some good, some bad, some plain love, some so-so love, and c'est la vie!€ but just let me proclaim that, out of all the strange love you're the strangest love I've ever known
