And the sun gives up the day
And as she slowly hides behind the water
The fiery skies will turn to gray
And burn away

And you know in your heart that you need us
But your vision's an ocean between us
Before this night gives way to day
We have something to, something to say

We are the ones, we are the ones
That are broken and abused
We are the ones, we are the ones
We're not the same as you

But tonight we will watch you fall onto your knees
We are the ones, we are the ones

And the night surrenders to the burning skies
The blinding light of day
It gathers the moon, it takes the stars
And turns away

And we've been here before and you've seen us
The ocean is miles between us
Before this night gives way to day
We have something to, something to say

We are the ones, we are the ones
That are broken and abused
We are the ones, we are the ones
We're not the same as you

But tonight we will watch you fall onto your knees
We are the ones, we are the ones

And today is the first day and the last day of forever
And there's no turning back now
We can't separate, we can't separate
We can't separate, we can't separate
Whoa, whoa, whoa, whoa

Can we find a reason?
Where do we begin at the end of separation?

We are the ones, we are the ones
That are broken and abused
We are the ones, we are the ones
We're not the same as you

But tonight we will watch you fall onto your knees
We are the ones, we are the ones
