

London Anderson"Enough"

Visit "Enough" on MotoLyrics.com

So you ask me to swim the sea
Climb the mountains to prove it's real
Tucked into bed, turned out the lights
Just want to hear your heart beating next to mine

I'm afraid of what this might be
I'm afraid of you loving me
I'm afraid of the words I want to say
I'm afraid of losing you one day
So we're young, stupid and in love
But that's enough
Yeah that's quiet enough

So you ask those questions we all do
Who will pay the bills, can we make it threw
I always feel like a million bucks
When I'm with him, a kiss and hugs enough

I'm afraid of what this might be
I'm afraid of you loving me
I'm afraid of the words I want to say
I'm afraid of losing you one day
So we're young, stupid and in love
But that's enough
Yeah that's quiet enough

Stupidity is not what we have going on
We're just about to last for an eternity

I'm afraid of what this might be
I'm afraid of you loving me
I'm afraid of the words I want to say
I'm afraid of losing you one day
So we're young, stupid and in love
But that's enough
Yeah that's quiet enough

So you ask me to swim the sea
Climb the mountains to prove it's real

