"Changing The Moods"

Every now and then - I wake up In different rooms Light a cigarette, strawberry tea and sing the blues Somehow I tend to leave behind the tears and the truths and just forget- that I can't get over you Every now and then it just all remains the same
We try to move ahead but get held back in the game, somehow now I'm livin' in the past
I'm still with you, please don't forget
'Cause this ain't over yet
I'll be here changin' the moods
I'll straighten out my head'n all the foolish things I do
And I'll be here changin' the moods - yeah Only 'cause I need the time, so I can get back to you I'll be changin' the moods
Every now and then I seen to do nothing but wrong
I blame it on my pride yet that as such, is almost gone
Every day there's choices to be made
And memories are lingering, the future seems to fade Somehow now I'm livin' in the past
I'm still with you, please don't forget
'Cause this ain't over yet
I'll be here
