I may be bleeding, but i don't care see where i'm leading, see i'm almost there these days lost their meaning, but i don't care but still we're all breathing, so cry if you dare with the world before me to break my fall and this wind behind me won the street lights embrace me, see I close my eyes they're building wraps around me everyone's sleeping, but i don't care cos I can see reason, flowing through the air here comes some feeling, that no walls can hold and clear and relieving us from the cold

they're building wraps around me
