by Van Morrison
(Transcribed from Them's Them Again album, 1966)
Fill me my cup
and I'll drink your sparkling wine pretending everything is fine till I see your sad eyes

Throw me a kiss
across a crowded room
some sunny windswept afternoon there's none too soon for me to miss my sad eyes
woh oh ou, not bad eyes
a glad eyes, but you my sad eyes

Fortunate and free
and there go you and I
between the other sky
but who are you and I
to wonder why we do so
my sad eyes - lonely

Oh what a story
come on in all it's glory
this song that I sing in everything for you my sad eyes

You'd better fill me my cup
and I'll drink your sparkling wine
till I see your sad eyes
lonely sad eyes

(Transcribed from Maria McKee singing on The Van Morrison Songbook, 1997)
Fill me my cup

there's none too soon for me to miss
my sad eyes
oh, not bad eyes
but glad eyes, you my sad eyes

my sad eyes, yeah yeah

Oh what a story

You fill me my cup
and I'll drink your sparkling wine
for you my sad eyes
but glad eyes, it's you that I [ sa.....ile ?! ] ah, sad - lord, sad eyes - sad eyes (Transcribed by ear, so corrections are welcome)
