I still remember
Those first words you said to me
They sounded so right
But look what it turned out to be
A thin line I walked a mile to see
If the waist laid was real
Or just part of my memory

I still can't believe the things
That you did to me
And when I look back now
It's so easy to see
A day hasn't gone by
When I haven't thought of
All the lies that you told me

Funny how things
Never turn out
The way you thought they would
You thought they would

I'm sorry that I lost my head
And brought you to a place
Where you feel dead inside
And all your friends
Don't seem to understand at all

I'm sorry that I failed again
And brought you to a place
Where you don't stand up for yourself
And all your friends
Don't seem to understand at all

The next few nights
I know you cried yourself to sleep
The winter kissed me on the lips
And let me see
What was really happening
What was really happening

You wanted me

To blindly follow you
The thick and thin
Was never followed through
And when we came out
On the other side
There was nothing left
But still tried to hide
How... never turn out the way
You thought they would
You thought they would

I'm sorry that I lost my head
And brought you to a place
And all your friends
Don't seem to understand at all

I'm sorry that I failed again
Don't seem to understand
They don't seem to understand
The way you have to feel at all

Funny how things
Never seem to turn out
The way you thought they would

I'm sorry that I lost my head
And all your friends
Don't seem to understand at all

I'm sorry that I failed again
Where you don't

Stand up for yourself
(Stand up for yourself)
(X3)

Stand up for the way you are.
