I woke up on The Battery on a Charleston Friday night
With my dirt-stained Corduroys and Balances crumpled up by my side.

Said goodbye to my company, then I shook it on down the line.

Sometimes I get a little lonely, and wish I hadn't left her behind.

'Cause every highway bears a bright sign
Posted on the side of a roaring world.
And every passerby rolls back again,
And in the end, you get what you're looking for

So just give me my good friends,
And a good hearted woman
Just give me some high times to fall back on
Sometimes I might need a cool drink
And the good Lord to save me
Then I will be found, I will be found.

Ran out of gas on the freeway, 'bout a quarter mile from Abilene.
That Texas sun just hung in the sky, smiling on me.
A stranger stopped named Casey, said he's a friend of a friend of mine.
He said, "It sure is a small world." I said, "It suits me just fine."

'Cause every highway bears a bright sign
Posted on the side of a roaring world.
And every passerby rolls back again,
And in the end, you get what you're looking for

So just give me my good friends,
And a good hearted woman
Just give me some high times to fall back on
Sometimes I might need a strong drink
And the good Lord to save me
Then I will be found, I will be found.

Well they put me in a jail cell before a race in Bristol,

Tennessee.

Don't you go to Sully County if you want to be free.
But there are two ways you can take things, you can make them right or keep them wrong,
So I kept my mouth closed and played Dominoes 'til the judge sent me home.

'Cause every highway bears a bright sign
Posted on the side of a roaring world.
And every passerby rolls back again,
And in the end, you get what you're looking for

So just give me my good friends,
And a good hearted woman
Just give me some high times to fall back on
Sometimes I might need a cool drink
And the good Lord to save me
Then I will be found, I will be found.

So just give me my good friends,
And a good hearted woman
Just give me some high times to fall back on
Sometimes I might need a strong drink
And the good Lord to save me
Then I will be found, I will be found.
