Making my way through the saga
I've been writing my whole life,
I didn't see her coming, a strange twist in my tale But you don't get any time off when you're searching for something, so I kept moving, let the wind stay in my sail

She's been my little lady for 'bout three years running now, trying hard this time to make this something last But it's never easy on her while I'm flying all around Being lonely ain't a thing I'd ever ask

It was just coincidental that we wound up as a pair, so many pieces of our puzzle didn't fit So it got a little messy, pieces lying everywhere, despite our best attempts to make some sense of it

Gunning for a hidden treasure lying somewhere up ahead, I didn't want to die, thinking "there's one thing I missed"
It's a long shot, by any measure, where two people live as one I didn't think both of our worlds could coexist

Then I drop from the sky on a cold winter breeze, I look down, and see her waiting there for me, and I say:
"Oh, yeah"

It's another conversation, one we never really had,
where we finally figure out what's going on But waiting for just the right moment means you'll wait a million years,
'cause the silence is the one thing you'll say wrong

We both tried to live conventional, like they told us that we should,
watching all the best things that we once had fade You give up some natural freedom for some fake security, then realize that's not how our kind is made

Then I drop from the sky on a cold winter breeze,
I look down, and see her waiting there for me, and I
say:
"Oh, yeah"
