You say you love me a little
You say you want to stay friends
You say you don't want no strings attached
No one on you to depend

You see love as a prison
I see love as a key
You think a little is more than enough
It's not that way for me

I need to be loved too much
I need to be held too tight
I need to hear someone say at the end of the day
I'll make everything right
When the rest of the world goes home
I need to feel someone's touch
I've been alone too long
Now I need to be loved too much

Too much sun will burn you
Too much rain you'll drown too
Too much cold will freeze you
Too much wind will blow you down

But love is something different
That disregards the rules
You call me a dreamer
But sometimes dreams come true

I need to be loved too much
I need to be held too tight
I need to hear someone say at the end of the day
I'll make everything right
When the rest of the world goes home
I need to feel someone's touch
I've been alone too long
Now I need to be loved too much

I need to be loved too much
I need to be held too tight
I need to hear someone say at the end of the day
I'll make everything right

When the rest of the world goes home
I need to feel someone's touch
I've been alone too long
Now I need to be loved too much

Oh, I need to be loved too much
Yes, I need to be loved too much
