It's a terrible conversation,
and even worse of a thing to plan.
But that's the world we know...
And without any variations,
when theres nothing to understand,
a cure to call your own...

When it's all said and done, its enough to go.

When theres not any deal to bargain,
for an arguments table set,
an election never comes...
It's the epitomy of frustration,
cause it's a problem already made.
you learn to bite your tongue...

When it's all said and done, its enough to go.

I hope your expectations,
were lower than before.
I wish away the difference,
who needs that anymore.

It's like a tragedy set in motion,
or a train that you can't derail.
It ways more than a ton...
If your scrambling for attention,
then you'll probably be revealed.
Now the options gone...

When it's all said and done, its enough to go.

Without consideration,
your standards slowly stall.
Like falling off a ladder,
your time has come and gone.
