

Unbroken "Curtain"

this love built up inside me I thought would last always once burning wildly now being doused with pain no sympathy could ever remove your scars laid upon me how could you move on so fast is all I ever wanted to know the thought of you with another crushes my soul I don't understand when you stay you still love me but I guess I know you now better than I did for your type of love is a curtain you will always hide behind for the rest of your life regret will allways get you in the end and that is the only piece of mind I have.
