-- Original --

If it seems like all the way was in vain,

If it seems like my heart is torn now,

There is a song that rises in me again and again:

Never mind, never mind, never mind

If it pains you, your eyes are in tears,

If it pains you and there's no sign for what's about to come,

I will sing you and wrap your head up to your neck

Never mind, never mind, never mind

Because this song consoles hearts,

Doesn't give up and finds ways,

Turns again bad into good,

And the familiar melody is repeating itself

Never mind, never mind, never mind

In front of a wave of happiness the sea of sorrow is wide,

Light and darkness are fighting over us now,

Only the song is rising, loved and familiar:
Never mind, never mind, never mind
Because this song consoles hearts,
Doesn't give up and finds ways,
Turns again bad into good,
And the familiar melody is repeating itself
Never mind, never mind, never mind
Because this song consoles hearts,
Doesn't give up and finds ways,
Turns again bad into good,
And the familiar melody is repeating itself
Never mind, never mind, never mind
And the familiar melody is repeating itself
Never mind, never mind, never mind
