Twelve hours a day ain't such a long time, it's only a means to an end
He thinks that his pay will buy her devotion
But he's only payin' for her to pretend
What more can he do but give her his heart, wrapped up in a love so sincere
Looking around at all that they have, it seems clear

Chorus:

That it's never enough, never, never enough
Why is all that we have simply never enough
No, it's never enough, never, never enough
It's so sad, is anything ever enough

She ran out of time for people who loved her
Their love couldn't get her nowhere
Isn't it sad she started collecting
Friends who are strangers, but she doesn't care Surrounding herself with phonies and fools, who tell her what she wants to hear
Looking around at all that they have it seems clear

chorus

(Instrumental break)

Why must we want so much more than we have, will we never be satisfied?
Just look around, how can we feel so denied?

But... chorus

Enough (repeats out)
