"The Right Moment"

Spinnin' on another wheel, going 'round in slow motion Caught up in another dream, drifting on a blue ocean When you gonna reach out, only you can turn your world around
When will you surrender and wake up to the real

But you don't wanna start just yet, you watch the seasons come and go
You remember and then you forget, all along the way

You can make a better life, you're just waiting for the right moment
You can find another wife, you're just waiting for the
When you're gonna let go and forget about the life you knew
When will you surrender and wake up to the real

Now you know that it's all borrowed time, and still you waste another day
But you watch and you wait for a sign, all along the way
