These are the last tears on your face
The last time I'll be leaving you without a trace
We've been trading words,
The thoughts of never letting you go
But now we'll cry as our tears glissén the snow

The fire in our hearts burn
Giving love a second chance through another dawn
Though we are separate and it is the truth
There will be no body who meant as much to me
As you

But now as we watch the stars
We'll replay our memories like movies
That we used to call works of arts
But ever so slowly we're drifting apart
Just before the credits roll, I'd say I'll never let you go Even though the sequence in my heart has taken the second blow
So cold, the memories will fade
The intensity of you immaculate will drag me my grave
I can't believe this has been happening
As if our lifetimes have been played

Through the years my hearts been wandering
Constantly revolving the images of the past
Without a second word, thy love be heard
Come back to me
To an ailed heart that must be cured

I've been digging through empty lies and promises
Always searching for the truth
But the sequence deep inside me
Always considers you the truth
