My eyes are still burning from such sunny days
When you came to paint all of my dark skies away
Who would choose between two shades of gray
In a world, in a world so fast, my heart stops beating?

I try to wrap my head around a world so big
When we, we've got just one life, just one life to live
How can my voice sound above all the lies?
We're silenced by the masses
But who are we if we don't try?

Give me a reason to believe
This life is more than what it seems
Give me a reason to believe
You're all I need, all I need

It's hard to decide just where my loyalties lie
When our heads are filled with so much useless pride Children's cries drowned out as we feed our greed with no thought to the future
Will we ever take a chance on peace?

Give me a reason to believe
This life is more than what it seems
Give me a reason to believe, oh

Give me a reason to believe
This life is more than what it seems
Give me a reason to believe, to believe
You're all I need, all I need

And you're already gone 'cause I've been here too long
And it seems that it's all about to change
Yeah, you're already gone, and I've been here too long
And it seems that it's all about to change

Well you've come and gone, and it seems so long
Please someone tell me that I'm strong
It's all about to change
And you were here all this time
But I was blind without a chance to make it right

It's all about to change

To change, change, oh
It's all about to

Give me a reason to believe
You're all I need, you're all I need
Give me a reason to believe
All I need

You are my, you are my, you are my reason (all I need)
And we sing
You are my, you are my, you are my reason (all I need)
