

Useless I.D. "A Year To Forget"

Visit "A Year To Forget" on MotoLyrics.com return back home after three months on the road i know that it's time to piece my puzzled life into an ordinary frame life goes on but for me it seems to go the other way nothing worked out for a while then it all just seemed to change

looking hard for the easy way to get away from it another year has gone by and i feel that i've slept through it all i'll be gone like the thief that's on the run who's got the world in his hands and is trying to get away from everyone he knows thinking back to a time when i was moving here leaving it all behind to start again and it is all these lessons that i haven't learned one day i will...

searching for you until you ripped my life into another piece that meant nothing for a while, back then i just thought that way some feeling changed but i'm better off this way when i'm without you just because i know whoever is with you is going through the same

leaving it all behind to start again
one day i will... so tell me when will i find the path that is meant for me i know that it's out there and it'll always be for now i can just try to figure it out what this situation is all about life goes on and one day it will move on without us but i'll have my faith, someday i'll move on to something more
