First I pulled open this curtain so that you could see me
I ascended from the riverbed ensconced in silver shard
I was hoping that the light I bring would lead you to the sea

Where the lotus blooms sing for you, like the reeds out in the yard

Chorus:

Come to me
Right through me

So I'm asking you to open up your heart with gentle care
Do not cower like a fearful thorn tacked onto some fleshy bread
Rise up and like the gossamer that's taken with the air
Weave a corsage for the sailor still hungry for your bed

Chorus:

Come to me
Right through me

I know you feel cheated
I know you're still mad
I'm not askin' you to ignore your feelings, babe
But this life is a gift, why insist on staying sad

Won't you please descend your tower, you've been hiding far too long
I wanna feel again the warmth from your diamond eyes
Can't you hear the distant call of the tides lonely song
It is for your mineral touch that it cries

Chorus:

Come to me
Right through me
