The dust is settling
As I lie here
It was a subtle hint
Of what went wrong
I've been giving up, giving up
On every plan that I've made
I'm finally waking up
But just a little too late

My life has always been a dead end street
With heavy eyes that shoot through me
I slip somewhere in between what's right and wrong
And now I drown with every breath I take
I'm sick of feeling like I can't escape
I'll get out before I go insane
To somewhere I belong
Somewhere I belong

I don't know who I am
Or how I got here
But I'm a subtle hint
The best forgotten
You never know, never know (never know, never know)
What this boy could have been (what this boy could have been)
I guess I finally figured out...

My life has always been a dead end street
With heavy eyes that shoot through me
I slip somewhere in between what's right and wrong
And now I drown with every breath I take
I'm sick of feeling like I can't escape
I'll get out before I go insane
To somewhere I belong
Somewhere I belong

I'm struggling to find my feet (Washed away)
But just in time to watch the sea (Wash away)
All the memories of you (Just washed away)

Giving up, giving up

On every plan that I've made
Finally waking up a little too late

My life has always been a dead end street
With heavy eyes that shoot through me
I slip somewhere in between what's right and wrong
And now I drown with every breath I take
I'm sick of feeling like I can't escape
I'll get out before I go insane
To somewhere I belong
Somewhere I belong

Giving up, giving up
On every plan that I've made (Somewhere I belong)
I'm finally waking up (Somewhere I belong)
A little too late
Giving up, giving up (Somewhere I belong)
On every plan that I've made
I'm finally waking up (Somewhere I belong)
A little too late (Somewhere I belong)
Giving up, giving up (Somewhere I belong)
On every plan that I've made
I'm finally waking up (Somewhere I belong)
A little too late
Giving up, giving up (Somewhere I belong)
On every plan that I've made
I'm finally waking up (Somewhere I belong)
A little too late
