These best night steps I stop to see
My anxious words move awkwardly
Retracing Montegue walks again
Pick up the pace, youre dragging me

Now, you are my ecstasy
Youre shaking this cold heart clean
Now it may be too soon to tap the tree
Im aching hard, these hooks dig deep

Elizabeth, please
Your cold kisses keep me warm
Complete this promenade, the bridge lights beg
Let me take you home

Elizabeth, please
My patience in December breeze
Dont let me be alone again tonight
Let me take you home

These favors I lay and you receive
These things she borrowed you relieve
These holes that you patch
They dont hold back this bitter breeze
And I watch your brow, your crooked brow, question me

Elizabeth, please
Your cold kisses keep me warm
Complete this promenade, the bridge lights beg
Let me take you home

Elizabeth, please
My patience in December breeze
Dont let me be alone again tonight

Now you may not just be a pretty eye

And this may not be idle time

But understand,
Oh, these gifts I give

May not be gifts for you
But gifts I need to give for me

I re-taste our first nights ease
I watch your finger touch tease
Oh and I feel, that wicked grin deceive

Elizabeth, please
Elizabeth, please
Elizabeth, please
