Did you feel the nurse at night
She stroked and held your hand
Did you feel the doctor's might
He cried
You understand that everything ain't always right
Oh
Hell
It never is Well you are going to die tonight like all your parents did

Remember the morning breeze on your face when you'd cry
And tell me you don't want to leave
Though you're so worn and tattered on this night

Well I think about the times we shared
The moons that shone so bright
I think about the love we shared
A love that overrides

Remember the morning breeze on your face when
you'd cry
And tell me you don't want to leave
Though you're so worn and tattered
Oh
If you only knew I doubt that you'd be dying I'm such a selfish fool to think that you're not trying to stay

Is it over
Too lonely
I'm right here and I'm scared tonight that you won't make it
That you're losing this fight
You're burning out before me
You're a million fireflies
You're burning out and I can't say goodbye

Remember the morning breeze on your face when
you'd cry

And tell me you don't want to leave
Though you're so worn and tattered

It hurts me loving you
It burns a million fireflies

It hurts me loving you
It burns a million fireflies

It hurts me loving you
It burns a million fireflies

It hurts me loving you
It burns a million fireflies

It hurts me loving you
It burns a million fireflies

It hurts me loving you
Oh
Damn you for loving me
