like a moth drawn to flame, it comes for you in the middle of the night alone in your room screaming and crying and trying to be heard it tells you you're nothing without saying a word feeds on your mind, feeds on your skin its hands feel so cold as it tries to get in you can't scream, you can't hide you can't run to the other side you can't feel, you can't cry you can't run, you are paralyzed

take it away
I want you to take it away
I fear it so..

and you can't take a breath: it's crushing you feel a hand reaching in, and what can you do?
trying to fight it but you can't say a word it rips at your mind, tears at your soul afraid that you're losing and you'll never be whole

you can't feel, you can't cry

take it away
I fear it so..
