Who rest silently beside you. That still figure is my own.
As my body sleeps my spirit wanders.
To a world closed of the wakeful.

No place do rules apply, because no walls keep me
inside.
My vision shall no doubt reveal, the secrets best left
alone.

Nobody belives the tales, by the fireside I love to tell.
The pshysical plain has grown tiresome, it's tie it gradually slackens.

No place do rules apply, because no walls keep me
inside.
My vision shall no doubt reveal, the secrets best left
alone.

Visions left alone. Ruling blindly from my throne.
I would chose to gracefully withdraw. Within the walls of some hovel.

A thousand miles from nowhere, so far from the human dominion.
No place do rules apply, because no walls keep me inside. My vision shall no doubt reveal, the secrets best left alone.
