"once when i had faith in the world i thought people got what they deserved i was so young and so naïve now i've grown i've changed my mind the world and god are really not that kind but still i clung to my beliefs still i believed but when only a stone says you were here (has it been that long?) these years have passed but i'm still in disbelief in disbelief

and all the times i've been betrayed they take my soul and they throw it away and once again i am deceived and i bleed

i bleed

you tell me what is justified how fair is love or war when children die?
is there no hope and no relief?

when right is oft repaid with wrong i guess the meek will never beat the strong so much for faith and my beliefs do i believe?

i believe...

i believe
i believe in what i see
