you must have gave up before you found the lessons told by mistakes you hold well they're coming round like your karma never did you must have let them push you down you're hopeless lying on the floor cause you thought no one would be counting score again

well you're wrong, again well you're wrong, they did and it's all about the pain and it's all about the choices you make seems so funny now you're crawling towards your antidote of blaming someone else for your pain

why do so called friends bring you down? i thought i told you once before the "first layer" type nice won't make you whole you must not have spoke because you found words fill you with so much pain but do you think they dug the hole you're standing in

well you're wrong, you did

and it's all about the choices you make

and then you say, how did this happen to me?
and then you say, why did this happen to me? you try so hard sometimes too much to be something that maybe you're not that's how this happened to me i guess you're just like me

and it's all about the pain and it's all about the choices we've made seems so funny now we're crawling towards standing up and speaking for ourselves without the pain
