Does death divide us all by light
The same way as the day decides the night
Is darkness just where it begins
As I get closer, does blindness set in

Does death divide us all by light

Are we buried beneath the ocean
Or have the bodies we once had all turned to dust

Does death divide us all by light
The same way the day decides the night
Is darkness just where it begins
As I get closer, does blindness set in

Look into these hollow eyes
I have seen the dead come alive
Look into these hollow eyes
I have seen the dead come alive

I have seen the dead come alive
The dead come alive

Are we buried beneath the ocean
Or have the bodies we once had all turned to dust

Forgive this face for goodness sakes
What else could I do, this is my fate
If finding death is happiness
Well then my friend wish me the best

(Bring me your bones)
(Bring me your bones)
(Let them be my own)
Wish me the best

(Bring me your bones)
(Bring me your bones)
(Let them be my own)

If finding death is happiness

Well then my friend wish me the best
(Bring me your bones)
If finding death is happiness
Well then my friend wish me the best
(Bring me your bones)

Bring me your bones
(Bring me your bones)
(Bring me your bones)

Bring me your bones
(Bring me your bones)
(Bring me your bones)

Bring me your bones
(Bring me your bones)
(Bring me your bones)

Bring me your bones
(Bring me your bones)
(Bring me your bones)
Let them be my own

(Bring me your bones)
(Bring me your bones)

(Bring me your bones)
(Bring me your bones)
