I am at ease in the arms of a woman
although now most of my days are spent alone
a thousand miles from the place I was born
But when she wakes me she takes me back home

Now most days I spend like a child who's afraid of ghosts in the night I know there ain't nothing out there I'm still afraid to turn on the light

I am at ease in the arms of a woman
although now most of my days are spent alone
a thousand miles from the place I was born
but when she wakes me she takes me back home

A thousand miles from the place I was born

although now most of my days are spent alone
a thousand miles from the place I was born when she wakes me she takes me Yeah, when she wake me she takes me Yeah, when she wake me she takes me back home

When she wake me she takes me back home
