I love the part in fairy tales
That's very near the end
When all the kingdom cheers for their new queen
And all is well, and all is good
And everyone belongs
And happily they're ever after-ing

But when I enter the kingdom of dreams
And face the promise of all I can be
Will they see me as a heroine
Tell me, will they let me in

I love the hour the seasons change
And winter turns to spring
And empty branches welcome newborn leaves
The Earth makes room for ev'ry flow'r
That reaches for the sun
"We're glad you've come," is whispered on the breeze

But when I enter the spring of my dreams
Just like the wild flower that bursts on the scene
Will I find my place with a gentle wind

Tell me, will they let me in

And if a heart's breaking
A part of me's aching
To show them how much that I care
But if no one lets me or turns and forgets me
Then how, how can I share

There is a part of fairy tales that's very near the end
The princess and the prince proclaim their love
And hearts are healed and souls are changed, and two blend into one
All orchestrated by the stars above

But when I stand at the door of my dreams
And face a lonely heart calling for me
I could fill that emptiness within, if
That heart would let me in Won't someone let me in
