Joe: Girl meets boy.
That's a safe beginning.
Artie: Is this a Western?
I love those wild-rolling plains.
Betty: No it's not. They live in the city.
Artie: Then it's a thriller:
A sidewalk gleams when it rains.

Or how about a brilliant pianist?
Every time the full moon's on the rise
He can't play without a shot of virgin's Blood.
Betty: Thanks a lot
Be sure to leave your number.
Artie: you'll think of something,
I'll see you opening night.
Betty: Girl meets boy,
Now if I remember
She's a young teacher,
He's a reporter
It's hate at first sight.
Joe: It won't sell,
These days they want glamour:
Fabulous heiress
Meets handsome Hollywood heel
Problem is, she thinks he's a dentist.
Would you believe it?
A wedding on the last reel.
Betty: It doesn't have to be so mindless.
You should write from your experience
Give us something really moving;
Something true
Joe: who wants true?
Who the hell wants moving?
Moving means starving
And true means holes in your shoe.
Betty: No you're wrong.
They still make good pictures.
Stick to your story,
It's a good story.
Joe: O.K. Miss Schaffer
I give it to you
