The first time you looked
At her curves you were hooked
And the glances you took, took hold of you
And demanded that you stay

And sunk in their teeth
Bit you hard and released
Such a charge that you need
Another touch, another taste, another fix

She just might get you lost
And she just might leave you torn
But she just might save your soul
If she gets you and she, gets you any closer

And she leads you up
Points out skylines and stars
Steeplechases and bars and took your keys
And demanded that you stay

The city longs well for
Rooftops and invitations
All lace and secret places
She moves you to touch with her hands

And she just might get you lost
And she just might leave you torn
But she just might save your soul
If she gets you and she, gets you any closer

Under the cool sheet where the welcome touch
Of skin and skin will meet
Hot on the inside, where the girl's prize
Is at the tip of your tongue

When every move and each impulse
Brings clarity
To stay like this is everything
You'll ever need

She just might get you lost
And she just might leave you torn

But she just might save your soul
If she gets you any closer

She just might get you lost
And she just might leave you torn
But she just might save your soul
If she gets you any closer

Can you believe your eyes?
