I can't go on
You said my head's too heavy I need that song those trusty chords could pull me through and early on
they saw the warning signs and symptoms all day long we sit and dream of better days where we'd hit the ground running on empty stories we've been told and all those nights we spent together never felt this fucking cold
when we let the car run in the driveway
kiss you one last time before we brought the horse's in before the storm of
'59! of 59' [x2]

i cant go on these limbs have grown to heavy i need that song a night on earth could pull me through
and early on
wonder how far from here we'll fall before we hit the ground running on empty stories we've been told
fucking cold
before we brought the horse's in before the storm of
'59!
