[My Morning Jacket - Where To Begin]

Up and up and up I climb
When I came up I was so far behind
My head takes a lickin'
But my heart keeps on tickin'
Just the same

Always startin' over but somehow
I always know where to begin

Round and round and round I ride
And just when I looked I hadn't even began
To feel the effect
A cool, dark fever
On the brain

That feelin' takin' over
Like a holy rollercoaster
To the grave

How can I await the day
The last the night I'm here to see
How do I await the mother lode

It's the art of feelin' naked in your clothes

Again, again, again I tried
That's how I knew I would never be denied
That face in the mirror
Who could it be, it was my own

That cool, dark figure
That's when I knew I was alone

On and on and on I drive when will I know I've finally arrived
So far I've gone, so far to go
It never ends

Always startin' over but somehow I always know where to begin

Always startin over but somehow I always know where
to begin
Always startin over but somehow I always know where to begin
