She's got these brand new friends, I've got a few new songs
But mostly new headaches, and reasons not to call
I slept through all today and rearranged my head Couldn't forget your face or how we watched our breath
Flee from our tired mouths, they were lost
Please, I've got enough on my mind

And I'll be fine, I'm sure you're justified
I can't believe my conscience told me that we'd be
alright
So roll your eyes, like you need to one more time
Take your time away
I'm wide awake all night
Alright

So what did you expect
When you've got me cornered here like this Where I can feel your breath
I don't want reminders that I can't leave
When I'm last to know when you leave Oh, I want this, the closure you keep Behind locked doors and closed eyes
And I'm thinking will you accept that I am..

Fine, I'm sure you're justified
I can't believe my conscience told me that we'd be
alright
So roll your eyes, like you need to one more time
Take your time away
I'm wide awake all night

Girl you keep on talking
Your hands on my face
I feel you start breathing
Your words are replaced by
The things I don't mean
And the feeling that leaves
Me holding here
But I don't know what you expect from me

When it's this hard to breathe

But I'll be fine, I'm sure you're justified
I can't believe my conscience told me that we'd be
alright
So roll your eyes, like you need to one more time
Take your time away
I'm wide awake all night

And I'll be fine, I'm sure you're justified
I can't believe my conscience told me that we'd be
alright
So roll your eyes, like you need to one more time
Take your time away
I'm wide awake all night
Alright
