they're building hate today I see it in the eyes of every passing gaze they're calling your name today, you've won congratulations say what your supposed to say be safe, make everyone feel comfortable call me out and let me breathe again call me out and let me see again breathe into me the air you say you're not polluting and flatter me, tell me I am beautiful that I'm the only one you care for make me believe that all your good intentions will offset all the wrong you've done still I'll be screaming
you don't know all the wrong you've done but we're still standing, we will cast out votes and not be afraid we will not fall won't you call us out giving us freedom again
