It just does not stop It never ends, like a precious blend of life wrapped into heavens winds
Like sex and infinite, with every second and minute Killing stress in the sin
Then it begins, you meet her
Then the first eternal cycle of life starts to occur
First your vision is blurred
Try to figure how to get her peeps jockin, so you eavesdroppin listenin to her words
First time, love at first sight
It's relevant in your life
A glow like an angel on earth, her soul was so bright Short nights become days
One way or the other she'll discover your praise And someday you'll be lovers, that's just to say the least
And if you ever get the guts to speak
Nothing but a couple feet away from making love complete
But you love the discrete thought thought that crosses your mind
And that's it, like an isolated island in the sunshine
It's that chick, next day the same shit Same time, same impression you get Same kind of feeling killing your mind because you're too shy to say shit
Not even high, wishing a perceptual state
So you visit this same place envisioning the chick as a vixen
Silent as a predator, pray you stay picturin
Your souls walk across the ocean, both talkin off emotions
Leave your hearts caught in the moment of an omen called love
Supposed to last forever
Awakened by a waiter askin if you have his cheddar
And you realize Nothing can be better than havin the pleasure sitting at the table that she's gigglin at But never will you ever get at that

So you smile while the world continues
And thoughts send you through the clouds Where Flora Purim sings a dream and you absorb The never ending feeling that you live for nothing more than her
