Somewhere there's someone what's he thinking of saying prayers to love he kneels before the idol she hovers there above says when you've prayed enough i'll take your starry hand lift you from the ground we'll walk towards the sun when will i be done this path just seems so long tell me where i went wrong i did all of the things you said and still she calls me on she says i must be strong throw your heart to sea never be a sailor with no port no ship no weather she looks down at her hero and smiles at him so kindly she sees he wanders blindly just like love's other beggars do between them make an army and every one a ragged king in exile from his home lost and quite alone he marches on the throne

(gone again)
