It was dark when you got there Here comes the dawn
The day is awakening There's dew on the lawn and where is the quicksand I was sinking into?
Must have had a hand out Guess it was you

A door swings open
You enter the room
You don't have to find it, you just let it find you I hold my breath for a second There isn't a sound and yet still i'm beckoned Oh yes it's profound

But it wasn't so easy when you're happy was blue You were covered in worry
We could see it on you Then you had to tread water, play for some time
No more waiting for someone to come and turn it to wine

This ole place needs cleaning
You pull up a blind I know what you're meaning but still i don't mind If there's ghosts in the corners they don't want to stay We'll open the window
We'll let them away

And if you believe that nothing can go wrong
And all will be mended that's been broke for so long The clouds they have opened they send down a ray like a sign for the stranger to show him the way
